THE CONFESSION OF THE ORDINARY

The Beholder: A Memoir of a Beautiful Mind

"Insomnia is loneliness." - Heath Ledger, 2007
For most of my life I was at war with my own mind. Then one exhausted evening I stopped fighting and asked it what it wanted. It answered in silence - and the truce we made became the architecture of this memoir: ten movements, twenty-four chapters, gathered from the nights that would not sleep and the mornings that did.
This is not an argument. It is a confession - the kind one human makes to another after the performance is over.

"Five to nine, you fly.
At nine, you come home."
